

Reference management

(Harvard style – one version)

- Purpose: Show your readers where you have found your material.
- Reference lists are usually found on the last pages in books and articles.
- There are several styles and versions. Consistency and clarity are the basic virtues whichever style you use!
- This Harvard overview is based on a guide from Univ. of Borås:

Citations in the text

Refer to works by stating the author's last name and year of publication (e.g. Foster 2005). Use comma after year if you add page number/s/.

If you quote a work, use quotation marks:

Thorlund Jepsen, Seiden, Ingwersen, Björneborn and Borlund (2004) remind us that "the location and the content of Web publications are easily changed" (p. 1240).

In a Swedish text:

Thorlund Jepsen, Seiden, Ingwersen, Björneborn och Borlund (2004) påminner oss om att "the location and the content of Web publications are easily changed" (s. 1240).

Several authors (not more than five), the first citation in the text:

Thorlund Jepsen, Seiden, Ingwersen, Björneborn and Borlund (2004) [or] (Thorlund Jepsen, Seiden, Ingwersen, Björneborn & Borlund 2004)

If the authors are three or fewer, always write all of them in every citation. If there are four or five authors, use et al. in the second and following citation/s/ in the text:

Thorlund Jepsen et al. (2004) [or] (Thorlund Jepsen et al. 2004)

If the authors are more than five, write only the first author followed by et al. in the first citation as well as the following. Include all the authors in the reference list.

Book references

Davies, Studer and Warren (2006) and Friberg (2012) have edited books (anthologies). Dawson (2005) and Zobel (2004) have written books.
