Information

Notification of interruption of doctoral studies can only take place during ongoing education and must be reported to the University before the actual interruption takes place. If you have not entered a date for interruption on the form, the incoming date is counted as the interruption date unless the end date of the education has been passed.

Interruption of doctoral studies mean that you are deleted from current participant lists, address lists etc. from interruption date. An interruption is also reported in the computer-based student register (LADOK) for each ongoing doctoral course.

Note! A registration of interruption of studies is a definite stance to discontinue an education - thesis, reviews, assignments, etc. are not possible to complete after the interruption date.

Completed credits points

The credits points that you have passed during your PhD studies are not affected and remain in LADOK. If you start the same doctoral studies again or some other higher education, the credits may be transferred. Decisions on credit transfer are made by the university concerned.

Handling of the form:

The notification of interruption of doctoral studies is submitted completed and signed to the Director of PhD studies.

The original is subsequently submitted to the Registrar for registering.
